SHINING A LIFE-CHANGING LIGHT

With support from Watermark for Kids, therapeutic laser will help reduce young boy's seizures.

Eight-year-old Xavier Sanchez lives with a severe form of epilepsy called Lennox-Gastaut syndrome (LGS) and low-functioning autism. After consulting with countless neurologists, searching for ways to reduce Xavier's seizures, they discovered light therapy.

Used for decades to reduce inflammation and stimulate healing, light therapy in more recent years has been studied as a way to reduce, and even eliminate, seizures.

"In just two months of therapy, Xavier began speaking, stopped wetting the bed at night and had a significant decrease in seizures," said Monica Sanchez, Xavier's mother.

Unfortunately, Xavier had to stop the treatment due to cost. That's when Community Life Director Karen Donnelly of The Watermark at Vistawilla in Winter Springs, Florida, stepped up to help. Monica Sanchez, a physical therapist, worked at the community and often brought Xavier to visit with the residents.

Donnelly soon told Monica about Watermark for Kids. As the community's new Watermark Kid, Xavier will receive a ShedLight laser to use at home.

"Having this laser at home will be life-changing for him. It will give him the opportunity to benefit from the therapy daily and have a better life," Monica said. "Our hope is that it will allow him to attend school, as well as participate in everyday activities, such as going to the park or going for a bike ride with an adaptive bike."

Now that's a story everyone can smile about. Thanks for your support.
